

Make a difference with your research

The VA Palo Alto Healthcare System seeks a health services research physician who is fellowship-trained and who will develop and evaluate innovative improvements in medical care delivery. Our VA is building the delivery system of the future, with strong local leadership in both clinical innovation and health services research. Join over 30 VA-based health services principal investigators at our successful Center for Health Care Evaluation. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to work closely with our nationally recognized Office of Process Improvement in evaluating impact of innovative clinical improvement programs. Experience with implementation science, informatics, and comparative effectiveness is a plus; demonstrated ability to work with clinical partners and multidisciplinary teams a must. This opportunity offers full time VA competitive salary support and Stanford University affiliation. Beautiful Bay Area location.
