

DIRECTOR

DEPARTMENT OF GYNECOLOGY & OBSTETRICS

The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine is seeking an exceptional individual to lead our Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics. Applicants should have demonstrated evidence of leadership qualities and outstanding achievements in research and teaching. The successful applicant must share our unwavering commitment to excellence, integrity, collegiality and respect for and inclusion of individuals of diverse backgrounds.

Our goal is to recruit a talented Director with strong interpersonal and communication skills who also has demonstrated accomplishments and is dedicated to discovery and innovation in clinical care, research and teaching. A track record of working effectively with faculty members and leadership from a variety of scientific and clinical disciplines is particularly important. As we continue the School of Medicine's efforts to increase the diversity of our leadership, we are also interested in identifying minority and women candidates.

Please send letter of application, curriculum vitae and bibliography to gynobsearch@jhmi.edu or mail to:
