

The Department of Community and Family Medicine at Howard University College of Medicine is recruiting three new physician faculty. We are especially interested in faculty with expertise in the following areas:

- Primary care obstetrics and women's health
- Population health (particularly with an MPH)
- Palliative care/geriatrics

At least one position is needed to serve as a "core faculty" function in the residency program. The ability to speak Spanish or Amharic is an additional consideration. Howard University College of Medicine is located on the Howard University campus in northwest Washington, DC, and is adjacent to Howard University Hospital. The department has plans in the near future to expand into southeast DC.

Please send a curriculum vitae, letter of interest, nominations and/or questions to:

Mark S. Johnson, MD MPH, Professor and Chair

mark.johnson@howard.edu

Howard University is an equal opportunity employer.