

Dear Community-Campus Partnerships for Health colleagues,

This fellowship would be a great opportunity to gain insight into the US public policy process and strategies for translating CBPR into action at a public policy level.

The 2010 APHA Public Health Fellowship in Government is now open and accepting applications. This is the third year that APHA has offered this fellowship.

APHA is looking for candidates with strong public health credentials who wish to spend one year in Washington, D.C. working in a congressional office on legislative and policy issues related to health, the environment or other critical public health issues.

The fellowship will begin in January 2010 and continue through December 2010. The fellowship is designed to provide a unique public policy learning experience, to demonstrate the value of science-government interaction, and to make practical contributions to enhancing public health science and practical knowledge in government.

Applications and additional information are available at <http://www.apha.org/advocacy/fellowship/>

The application, including CV and three letters of recommendation, are due to APHA by June 22, 2009.

All candidates:

1. must be APHA members
2. have five years of experience in a public health position
3. have a graduate degree in a public health discipline.

Community-Campus Partnerships for Health promotes health (broadly defined) through partnerships between communities and higher educational institutions.
