

Faculty Positions, Division of General Pediatrics
Children's Hospital Boston
Harvard Medical School

The Division of General Pediatrics at Children's Hospital Boston is seeking full-time faculty members (clinician-researchers and non-clinician-researchers) at the level of Instructor, Assistant Professor, and Associate Professor at Harvard Medical School. The Division is embarking on a major expansion of its research enterprise over the next several years. Faculty and fellows in the division conduct health services research, clinical research, behavioral interventions, community-based participatory research, and other research on child, adolescent, family, and community issues. Research funding comes from NIH, CDC, foundations, and private donors. The Division includes about 60 faculty members who deliver ambulatory and hospitalist care. The Division offers three fellowships: Health Services Research, General Academic Pediatrics, and Environmental Health.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae to:

Mark A. Schuster, M.D., Ph.D.
Incoming Chief, Division of General Pediatrics, &
Vice Chair for Health Policy Research, Department of Medicine
Children's Hospital Boston
Email: mark.schuster@childrens.harvard.edu

Children's Hospital Boston and Harvard Medical School are equal opportunity/affirmative action employers. Women and minority candidates are particularly encouraged to apply.
